TIRTHA BLESSING - A PATH TO SPIRITUAL PURITY

Thousands of steps lead down through pristine jungle. Along the way, shrines are decorated with fresh offerings. Our Camp Ranger will walk you to the holy springs of Dalem Pingit Temple at Sebatu. A little known place that is right off the tourist trail, but well known to religious Balinese. Experience a spiritual cleansing ritual called “Melukat”, which aims to achieve self-purification for both body and soul. Dressed in traditional Balinese attire, you will be guided through chanting and offerings by a local priest. At the end of the ritual you will be given a lucky charm bracelet “Tridatu” as a symbol of the three deities – Brahma the creator, Vishnu the preserver, and Shiva the destroyer. Your spiritual journey concludes with a delicious picnic lunch overlooking magnificent views of rice terraces.

MYSTICAL WONDERS OF KINTAMANI

Kintamani village is located on the western edge of Mount Batur's largest caldera. Its people and culture reflect the ties between Balinese and Chinese. The tranquil Kintamani setting is a perfect start to a day of exploration and discovery. Drive up in the early morning to Pura Puncak Penulisan. As the cool mountain dew drips off the sagging needles of the surrounding pine trees, it fills the air with a mist that gives the Pura Puncak Penulisan its unique and ephemeral morning atmosphere. Within the temple's walls, surrounded by these ancient Hindu artefacts, is a peaceful and almost palpable mysticism. The 12th century was a pivotal time in Kintamani's history, a period that still echoes in the present. It was during this era that Sri Jaya Pangus, a significant ruler of Bali, established his Kingdom within the Batur Caldera basin. His marriage to Princess Kang Cing Wie from the Chung Dynasty brought new customs, such as the use of pis bolong, Chinese coins now used for offerings. This union also led to merging Buddhist elements with Hinduism, giving birth to the unique Balinese Hinduism we see today at Pura Dalem Balingkang.
